NEW DELHI/MUMBAI (Reuters) - India's export growth slipped to its weakest pace this fiscal year so far as new export orders sank, even as the country's overall economy showed signs of recovery. The hardening of the rupee and the surge in prices of key commodities such as oil have spurred a rebound in the country's growth, but domestic demand is still weak as consumer confidence has slumped, business surveys showed on Thursday. Even as the decline in exports cooled, the value of India's merchandise exports grew 2.1 percent in January-September, compared with a 14.8 percent rise a year earlier, according to government data. The import growth declined to 4.3 percent. Analysts said Indian exporters were hit by higher oil prices and a weaker rupee, which has forced them to sell goods at lower prices and imports to compensate. "The latest figures show a slight decline from a year ago. The expectation was that exports would continue to grow at a faster pace," said Atul Dev, senior director at the Federation of Indian Export Organisations. "The increase in prices of oil and other base cost inputs were disruptive to the growth narrative... Oil prices were as high as $84 a barrel recently. With that, a large chunk of our manufacturers have not been able to reap the full benefits of the higher cost of production." REUTERS/Francis Mascarenhas/File Photo Exports fell 0.4 percent in October and December, the first back-to-back declines since last July, giving a clean chit to the Reserve Bank of India (RBI), which cut interest rates for the first time in nearly a decade in August to spur growth. "Exports have likely been held down by high input costs," said Dev. India's exports grew 9.3 percent in the January-September period, compared with a 14.2 percent rise a year ago, according to government data. The rise in import growth in August was the highest in nearly five years and suggested that India's trade deficit rose to a record high of 4.69 trillion rupees ($61.35 billion) in the July-September quarter. The deficit was 5.01 trillion rupees in the previous year. But the rise in imports came mainly on account of higher fuel imports

What's New in the Adobe Photoshop 2022?

[Enzymatic conversion of telomerase, human recombinant protein and its biological activity]. To obtain enzymatic conversion products of telomerase, human recombinant protein and evaluate the enzyme activity and biological activity of the modified protein. Human telomerase repeats were amplified using polymerase chain reaction (PCR) with primers containing 5' and 3' nucleotides of template-synthetic oligo-nucleotides. This product was inserted into the eukaryotic expression vector pCDNA3.1, and used as a template for in vitro synthesis of antisense peptides. These peptides were then inserted into E.coli BL21 (DE3), and the transformant was selected by induction of isopropyl-D-thiogalactopyranoside (IPTG). The product was evaluated by SDS-PAGE and Western blotting. The transformed E.coli strain was induced by IPTG, and the recombinant protein was purified. The biological activity of modified protein was identified by in situ telomerase-expressing cell immunohistochemistry and in situ telomerase RNA-expressing cell proliferation. The size of the recombinant protein was verified to be about 50 kDa, and the sequence was consistent with human telomerase sequence. The biological activity of the modified protein was confirmed by in situ cell immunohistochemistry and in situ cell proliferation assay. The enzymatic conversion of telomerase, human recombinant protein is obtained and the biological activity of it is not lost. The cellular activity of telomerase can be simultaneously studied by immunohistochemical staining of telomerase and real time PCR detection of telomerase RNA. FRESNO, Calif.
